My husband and I are long distance truck drivers. Our job depends on us being able to get from pickup to delivery quickly and safely. Since the hours of service change, saving time has become a top priority. Being able to plan ahead now means more than it ever did. With the XM coverage of traffic and weather in major cities we are able to avoid congestion and delays. Most of the time we cannot pick up local stations in time to avoid these delays. I would think that the local stations that are complaining would be glad that we, as truck drivers, would want to avoid adding to the problems in their areas as much as possible.
